George Mehok of Revol Wireless awarded 2008 CIO of the Year Award

CLEVELAND, December 2, 2008 — George Mehok, Chief Information Officer at Revol Wireless in Independence, Ohio, was honored with the 2008 CIO of the Year Award on November 20th by the Northeast Ohio Software Association (NEOSA). NEOSA is the technology network of the Council of Smaller Enterprises (COSE). Mr. Mehok was named top CIO in the mid-market company category.

Winners were selected by a committee of judges based on answers to a series of questions on issues such as strategic objectives, use of creativity and emerging technology, significant achievements by the company's IT team, short term and long term objectives, and community relations efforts with respect to IT.

"Revol Wireless is a consumer retail business which must earn our customers' loyalty each and every day," says Mehok. "It is imperative that the customer information systems are available seven days a week, 24 hours a day to effectively serve our existing customers, while aggressively seeking to attract new customers."

"The dedication and support of George and his I.T. team is paramount to meeting our sales goals and supporting our customers with unrivaled service," says Chris Duggan, VP of Sales at Revol Wireless. "His contribution and that of his team deserves to be recognized as a local success story."

In addition to the individual CIO awards, each winning CIO's team was recognized as the NEOSA I.T. Team of the Year. Mehok credits his I.T. team for this award, in addition to the support of the management team and board of directors. "The collaborative support from each department throughout the company has enabled IT to leverage technology to better to serve our customers and deliver value to our shareholders."
